Evidence of periodicities of family history and environmental factors in MS in different geographical areas. There is evidence that genetic factors may influence the appearance of autoimmune diseases and that they could be triggered by external factors. This study aims to investigate any periodic influence of family history (FH) and environmental factors on MS in different geographical areas. A case-control study of 123 MS patients and 162 controls was performed in León, Spain. Cases and controls were matched by sex, age and area of residence. Odds ratios (OR) were estimated. No association was found between environmental factors and MS. 82157476af
